

AFFIDAVIT WAS DRAWN FOR COERCING O'HARA

MISS ROBINSON SIGNED PAPER AT REQUEST OF SAMUEL DAVIS, A FRIEND.

DENIES ALLEGATION

Was Promised That Affidavit Would Not Be Made Public—Mrs. Inbusch Disclaims Any Connection.

Chicago, May 10.—Miss Maude Robinson, author of the affidavit calling into question the moral conduct of Lieutenant Governor Barrett O'Hara today told the story to the Etteleson committee, appointed to investigate the allegations. Asked point blank by Senator Etteleson if her relations with the lieutenant governor had been unduly intimate the witness replied in the negative.

In her testimony Miss Robinson brought in the name of Mrs. Mable Davidson Inbusch of Madison, daughter of a former governor of the Badger state. She said that she came from Springfield to Chicago on the train with O'Hara and Thomas Vredenburg.

Registered at Hotel. They went to the hotel LaSalle where they kept her baggage and where they met Mrs. Inbusch a widow. They then visited the cafe of the Hotel Sherman for dinner. Vredenburg, however, left the table and when he returned handed her the key to a suite of rooms, saying he had registered the quartet as "J. F. Miller and wife" and "F. D. Duncan and wife."

Affidavit Not Public. The committee of five appointed by the legislature to inquire into the charges of the affidavit signed by Miss Maude Robinson of Springfield against Lieutenant Governor O'Hara, head of the white society bureau met here today. The affidavit was placed in the hands of the legislative committee last Thursday by the deputy sheriff, R. M. Sullivan of Sangamon county, and although the document was not made public it was said to contain allegations of immorality on the part of the lieutenant governor.

Investigation Thorough. "The investigation will be a searching one and will go to the bottom of the whole affair," said Senator Samuel Eggleston, chairman of the committee, before the hearing. "I do not know whether it will be made public or not, but I believe something will be left to the committee as a whole."

A subpoena issued for Miss Robinson, who is considered by the committee as the principal witness in the case, had been served on her yesterday. She had been expected to appear at the hearing on Monday, but she failed to do so.

Miss Robinson has been at the city for two days, but yesterday when the subpoena was taken to be served on her, she was not at the city. She was said to have left the city for the home of relatives in this city for two days, but yesterday when the subpoena was taken to be served on her, she was not at the city.

After a number of drinks, the witness declared she, Mrs. Inbusch and Vredenburg went to the Hotel Sherman and remained there for several days. She said she saw the party adjourn to the Lamb's cafe where she said they met Harry Gibbons, a court bailiff and a friend of O'Hara who the latter said she telegraphed to Chicago.

She said she saw the party adjourn to the Lamb's cafe where she said they met Harry Gibbons, a court bailiff and a friend of O'Hara who the latter said she telegraphed to Chicago.

Later that night she said that the lieutenant governor called at the apartments. It was at this point that Senator Etteleson asked the direct question as to her relations with O'Hara. Miss Robinson testified that she came to the hotel on January 17, and remained there for several days.

Witnesses said that she signed the affidavit at the request of Samuel Davis, a liquor dealer of Springfield who assured her that it never would be made public and that she would be paid for her services.

Why didn't he want you to sign it? inquired Senator Etteleson. "Because he said that Davis might not keep his promise to keep the affidavit secret," she replied.

Throughout, Miss Robinson, dressed in a trim grey suit and frequently brushing back the long green veil which fell over her pretty face, spoke in a clear unhesitating voice.

"I wish emphatically to deny that there was any improper relation between myself and Mr. O'Hara or that the subject was even discussed," she said, repeating the accusation of the chairman Etteleson.

"Neither did Davis offer any money in connection with my signing the affidavit," she said.

"Are you ever married?" asked the chairman. "Yes," the witness replied. My husband was Foster Striver of Springfield. I was granted a divorce from him on April 1 and am now living with my mother and do dressmaking at 713 South English Avenue, Springfield.

Mrs. Inbusch Denies Connection. A special to the journal from Madison today denied that Mrs. Inbusch was a member of the Vredenburg party.

"She admitted acquaintance with Thomas Vredenburg and also admitted the possibility that she might have been in Chicago at the time in question," the special says.

"I was in Chicago at that time, however," said Mrs. Inbusch. "I was staying with friends and not at any hotel. I have nothing whatever to do with this affair. I know nothing of it except what I read in the newspapers. I have never been summoned and see no reason why I should appear as a witness at Chicago. I have never stayed at the Hotel Sherman and I have never visited with Vredenburg nor do I know Mr. O'Hara. I never knew Maude Robinson nor have I been in Springfield in two years."

Charges Political Conspiracy. "I believe that the bringing of my name into this part of a political conspiracy against my father, just as the charges are being used against Mr. O'Hara by the union keepers and diva keepers who resent his investigation," Inbusch talked after her father had refused to make any statement. The former governor said he knew nothing whatever of the matter and then introduced his daughter who he said would be willing to talk.

GOLD MINE ROMANCE RECALLED BY SALE

First Owners of Mount Morgan Gold Mines Realized Nothing from Their Discovery.

London, May 10.—The recent sale of a controlling interest in the Mount Morgan and Enderby gold mines, to English and Australian syndicate for some $5,000,000, recalls one of the great romances of mining in Australia.

The Morgan mines, named after two brothers who, although not the actual discoverers, were the first to realize the value of the property, have made immense fortunes for those who began the development. Walter Hall, son of one of the promoters, who obtained his interest by financing the locators, died two years ago and left a fortune of $12,000,000 of educational and charitable work in Australia.

The original Hall, Thomas, was manager of the Queensland National Bank when he obtained his interest in the Morgan mines. The Morgan themselves made large fortunes, but the man who took them to the property, and Donald Gordon, the original owner, received virtually nothing.

Gordon, grazed his sheep over the area, never realizing the wealth that lay beneath. His brother, Sandy, who visited him, was the first to get an inkling of the value of the big metallic-looking boulders, and when the attempt to raise sheep had failed he took the Morgan brothers to the spot. They took away specimens which assayed so high that the reports seemed incredible. The Gordon brothers were kept in the dark as to the value of their property, and Donald readily sold for $3,200. Thomas Hall and others were taken in by the Morgans retaining a half interest.

The riches of the Morgans came a year later when the Morgans sold the rights to the property, and by 1906 the mine was reborn as a copper producer, and today both copper and gold are being taken out.

BRITISH WILD WOMEN PLANT MORE BOMBS

Militant Suffragettes Attempt to Blow Up Railway Station and Postoffice.

London, May 10.—Two more of the novel militant bombs with which the militant suffragettes are attempting to scare the members of the British parliament into giving the parliamentary franchise to women were discovered today. Some of the quartet weighed as much as 800 ounces of the finest gold to the ton, and when $5,000,000 was distributed in dividends, the quartet went up to $50. The gold bearing one being valued at $100,000, and in 1906 the mine was reborn as a copper producer, and today both copper and gold are being taken out.

One of the bombs was found in the passenger waiting room at the busy Lime railway station in Liverpool and the other in the sorting room of the postoffice at Radding. The use of the bomb had been long known by the perpetrator but it had come out before it reached the gunpowder.

The bomb consisted of a tin box filled with gun powder and iron nuts and a long fuse laid in the center. The Radding machine was wrapped in a bulky parcel to which the attention of the postoffice employee was attracted by the sound of ticking.

The police were called in and upon examination found that the parcel contained an electric battery connected with the explosive and accompanied by suffragette literature. The parcel was seized and a municipal official at Radding who is now on his vacation.

The police believe that it was timed to explode in his residence during his absence. The clock arrangement was in perfect working order.

In view of the possible attacks by wild women on churches many historical edifices throughout the country, which are visited by thousands of tourists and other tourists have been ordered closed except during the hours of service.

Publisher in Court. Manchester, Eng., May 10.—James Whiteley, secretary of the printing firm responsible for the last issue of the Suffragette, was brought up in police court today and remanded for trial. The magistrate allowed him bail on his promise not to publish any further editions of the militant newspaper.

Another Arson Case. Dundee, Scotland, May 10.—Farrington Hall, the residence of Henry McGraw, a Dundee landowner, was destroyed by fire early this morning. Indications point to the militant suffragettes as the authors of the outrage.

SIR PERCY ENTERS PRIVATE BUSINESS

Secret of His Retirement from Imperial Service Learned—Joins Ship Building Firm.

London, May 10.—The secret of the retirement of Sir Percy Girouard from the imperial service to join the board of directors of the great shipbuilding firm of Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company, is out.

Sir Percy is a Canadian by birth, and he is about to return to the dominion to advise on the suitability of certain Canadian ports for the construction of docks and other engineering works in connection with future shipbuilding. He will also consult with the dominion ministers in regard to the dry docks to be built at Esquimaux and Esquimaux. It is understood that the private tenders for these docks have proved unsatisfactory, the Canadian government have decided to build them themselves.

Sir Percy Girouard was born in Montreal. He joined the royal engineers, and making the railway construction a specialty, rendered splendid service in the Egyptian, Egyptian and South Africa. He built the railway which took Kitchener to Khartoum; reorganized the Egyptian railways; and when Kitchener went to Africa, he immediately sent for the French Canadian, who became commissioner of railways in the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, rebuilding what had been destroyed during the war.

His withdrawal from the government service gave rise to a controversy as to whether the imperial government paid its servants sufficient to retain them when big salaries were offered by private concerns. Many a man who would have rendered valuable service to the country has been attracted by the salaries offered in private life, and most of the big shipbuilding yards and other engineering works are now headed by former officers of the navy and army.

ADOPTION OF LOAN MEASURE PROBABLE

Nye Constitutional Amendment Advanced to Third Reading in Senate—Adopted in Assembly.

Madison, Wis., May 10.—The advancement in the senate to third reading of the Nye constitutional amendment, which provides for the establishment of a system of state loans to farmers indicates that its adoption by this legislature is probable and that if acted upon favorably by the legislature of 1915 it will go to the people of the state for ratification or rejection in 1916. This resolution was adopted by the lower house on April 10 by a vote of 70 to 28.

The amendment is considered one of the most important measures ever placed before the Wisconsin legislature, as it offers a solution of one of the greatest problems now confronting the state—that of agricultural development on the cut-over timber lands of the northwestern part of the state, and tenant farmers in southern Wisconsin.

The amendment in effect proposes to solve both of these problems by permitting the state to establish a system of farm mortgage loans to farmers, and to establish a system of state loans to farmers.

SEVERAL AMENDMENTS FAVORABLY RECEIVED

LEADERS UNDERWOOD AND SIMMONS LOOK WITH INTEREST ON PROPOSED TARIFF CHANGES.

PREVENT LITIGATION

Would Give Secretary of Treasury the Right to Fix Value of Imported Goods for Determining Duties.

Washington, May 10.—An amendment to the tariff bill to authorize the secretary of the treasury to fix the values of imported goods for the purpose of assessing an ad valorem tariff duties irrespective of fluctuating foreign markets, thereby approximating the ad valorem system to the advantage of small importers, was proposed today to Chairman Simmons of the finance committee and Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee by Attorney General McReynolds and Secretary McAdoo.

Leaders Show Interest. Both the leaders looked upon the proposal with interest and the tariff bill may accordingly be amended in the finance committee before it enters the senate for debate.

President Wilson has been apprised that such an amendment would cut down litigation, take much work from the board of appraisers and is believed by its proponents to be absolutely necessary for the successful working of an ad valorem tariff bill.

To Curtail Litigation. Another amendment proposed would make it unlawful for any persons to take up appeals from appraised valuation on a contingent fee basis. Assistant Attorney General Denison said today that the amendment would never be introduced.

The proposed amendment which projects a completely new feature into the administration of the tariff law was conceived by Assistant Attorney General Denison, who was chairman of a presidential commission that investigated the board of appraisers several months ago. The recommendations of the commission for sweeping changes in the present methods of appraisement and classification were recently submitted to congress by President Wilson.

UNVEIL MEMORIAL TO CARL SCHURZ

Thousands of German-Americans Take Part in Impressive Ceremonies at New York Today.

New York, May 10.—With an interest stimulated by the fact that this famous fellow-countryman was a citizen of the world, as well, and that the event has a world-wide interest, thousands of German-American citizens of New York this afternoon witnessed the unveiling of the statue of Carl Schurz, forced to flee from his native land because of his revolutionary activities, became a citizen of the United States, and in his adopted home rose to positions of the highest distinction, serving in turn as minister to Spain, as a soldier in the civil war and as United States senator from Missouri, in addition to being a brilliant journalist and for half a century one of the most tremendous campaigners in American politics.

The statue occupies a commanding position overlooking Morningside Park and is surrounded by the St. Luke's Hospital, the buildings of Columbia University. The memorial was designed by Karl Bitter, assisted by Henry Bacon, the architect. The statue is soon to be erected in Washington. The bronze full-length figure of Schurz stands on a large granite pedestal. In its a nine-foot statue shows Schurz in the long coat of the description.

Carl Schurz, Defender of Liberty and Friend of Human Right. Two large granite seats extend on either side of the statue, and at each end is a bas-relief containing allegorical figures representing the principal activities of Schurz—the revolutionary of the Indian and the negro, and his contribution toward the advancement of the human race.

The unveiling ceremonies were preceded by a parade of civil war veterans, state militia and German societies. Mayor Gaynor and other invited guests reviewed the procession from a stand erected near the monument. The unveiling ceremonies were of a simple but impressive character. Joseph H. Choate, chairman of the committee which erected the memorial, presided, and the principal speakers were: Ambassador von Bernstorff, Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri and Borough President McAnany.

Many guests of distinction occupied seats on the stand. Among them were Andrew Carnegie, Oscar Straus, Charles Francis Adams, Horace White, George Haven Putnam and Dr. Abraham Jacob. Several generals who fought in the civil war with Mr. Schurz attended the ceremony. The unveiling ceremony was presided over by Mayor Gaynor, who read a resolution from Hampton Institute, toward which part of the Schurz memorial committee's $92,000 fund will be devoted and from Missouri, which sent the statue to the senate after the civil war.

LONG TIME SECURITY IS MOST EXPENSIVE
EXPERIENCE TEACHES RAILWAYS THAT SHORT TIME PAPER IS CHEAPER.

INVESTORS WORRIED
Regulation of Business Affairs Extending to Destruction of Property—Other Reflections.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)
Milwaukee, Wis., May 10.—The Common Council of Milwaukee passed a resolution the other day favoring government ownership of telegraph and telephone lines. The resolution has passed a bill permitting cities to acquire street railways, at any time by condemnation and the tend of all securities in the market local as well as those from home is lower. Lake Shore 3 1/2 per cent bonds have recently sold at 86. If anything in railroads is "gilt edged" Lake Shore is so considered. The state of New York cannot sell bonds that pay less than 4 1/2 per cent, and it will probably get no premium on them. The fall-down of the St. Paul bond sale might look suspicious if it stood alone, but the temper of money lenders (as plain terms) do not want any long time securities at any price, except government bonds, if they can get short term certificates on the same basis. Experience has taught the railroads that the high rate on their short time paper is really cheaper to them than the price they have to pay for underwriting long time bonds. This isn't the temper of big financiers alone. Small investors are troubled because they are afraid of a market with the bottom out of it. And in the face of these facts government bonds that pay only 2 per cent command a premium. With the Legislature and Congress all regulating business affairs it makes people reflect that the power to regulate is to power destroy, and wonder when we are to have a success. I must occur to men who keep informed that with the growing volume of business, the growing cost of things, and the growing rate of interest, must have a general cause which prevents lower prices, for there is always something ready to step in where money is to be made, and they are not all shy without cause. No general cause can be lopsided.

It affects everybody and it reaches everybody. The fellow who thinks he is going to "get" somebody with a class law soon finds the tables turned and some class law gets him. The air is full of that sort of thing and I suppose that, if I don't think it wise, ought to do as a friend of mine, judiciously said the other day—"You ought to call that letter of yours, The Kicker's Column. You are a hopeless Tory."

Epithets Fashionable.
Perhaps he is right, I certainly don't object to a name or an epithet. Epithets are particularly fashionable at present, and not to call a mark for them is probably to lack distinction. If you can't uplift, all the time, in wet weather, and dry you are certainly progressive. I know I fall here. The common epithets are so numerous to progress, backward and forward, and up in the air, and occasionally forward that I am neither mentally, nor physically agile enough and then to do some duties to perform. I thought, and that is some days ago, this month's Atlantic Monthly, for example, has an article by Agnes Repplier, that discusses our national epidemic of hysteria in a way quite to my taste. Among other good things, she says:

"The reformers who light heartedly assume that people are tired of the old Constitution anyway, voice the bouyant creed of avoidance. I heard last winter a popular lecturer say of a popular idol that he preferred making precedents to following them and plausibly followed a storm of applause. It was a pleasant surprise to be considered following a precedent to be a timorous and unworthy thing, for a strong man to do, and it was equally plain that nobody had given the matter the benefit of a serious thought. Joy, a supreme immunity from doubt. If you are a real uplifter you may not like the article but if you sometimes doubt your own capacity for standardizing universal knowledge, one fact that has long been apparent, namely, that the sense of humor is departing from this people, so it may not be sufficiently serious minded for our younger readers."

A friend of mine, not the man who wrote it but one of the employees to whom it was addressed, has sent me an account of the Erie Railroad Association, held at Buffalo last week, which contains a message that President Underwood, who could not attend

GIVES TIMELY HINTS REGARDING PLANTING
TAKE PLENTY OF TIME

PUT FINISHING TOUCHES ON ACRE CORN PLANTS AT ONCE IS THE ADVICE.

Mr. Raessler Recommends Great Care in Matter of Securing Uniform Number of Kernels to Hill.

Some very timely hints to the boys in the Gazette corn contest are contained in Noyes R. Raessler's article today. Preparation of the soil before planting and the process of planting are treated.

Final Preparations Before Planting.
Now is the time to put on the finishing touches to the acre corn plot. If the ground has been plowed and well worked down with the disc, it will be in fine condition for planting after going over it about twice with the harrow.

Be sure to remove all obstacles like stones or stumps as these will interfere with the cultivator being used. The room the corn will need later on. A rock carried off the field now might save a trip to the blacksmith shop, when you are busy cultivating.

Take plenty of time in planting, and make sure to drop a uniform number of kernels in every hill. Also see that the corn is planted at an even depth.

Just now is a good time to look over the cultivator. The shovels may need pointing. If such things are put off they are often left until the cultivator can do good work with dull or broken shovels. It is possible to tell that you need a new cultivator. Remember it is thorough work and not speed that counts when you are picking out a cultivator.

Above all do not rush any of the work connected with growing this acre of corn. Use plenty of deliberation and care right from the start and you will find the corn is more than willing to respond to good treatment.

Questions and Answers.
Question—How can I obtain all the lessons in corn culture you have written since the contest started?
Question 2—Which edition of the Gazette contains these lessons?
Answer—The daily edition of the Gazette is the one which contains all the articles on growing corn.

2.—Those who have recently become subscribers to the Gazette, can obtain the back numbers containing the corn contest lessons. Please write to the corn contest editor and they will be sent out as long as the supply lasts.

Question—How is the acre of land to be measured? From the fence or from the first row of corn?
Answer—The acre will be measured by one half the width of the plot, most one foot ten inches outside of the first row, all around the plot.

ELABORATE PARTY GIVEN BY KNIGHTS

Delightful Social Event Attracts Large Attendance at Academy Hall Friday Evening.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton May 10.—The Knights of Phylas dance held in the Academy Hall last evening proved to be the greatest social event of the year. The hall was prettily decorated with blossoming branches of various trees in bloom and the hall with the sweet perfumes.

A well displayed in one corner upon which dangled "The Old Oak Bucket," but upon investigation it was found that this well produced decoy punch only for the asking.

Cards and banners were displayed welcoming friends and brother Knights, while streams of red, blue and yellow were strewn throughout the hall.

Music was furnished by Geo. Hatch's harp orchestra assisted by Prof. Arlington at the xylophone. The music pleased all and it was finally announced that only one encore would be given on account of the vast crowd which numbered about one hundred and fifty couples.

The program given thru-out the evening was well rendered and was greatly appreciated by all present.

The program was as follows:
Song by Stoughton, M. Quatet.
Vocal Duet, by Messes Edna and Morth Wilson.
Violin Duet by Misses Kothlen and Lucile Cullen.
Song by Miss Helen Coon.
Song by Stoughton male Quartette.

These musical numbers were given between every fourth dance and added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

A special train came from Stoughton with about sixty couples, while representatives were also present from Janesville, Milton Junction, Ft. Atkinson, Jefferson, and Madison. Dancing was in progress until about one o'clock, when a supper was served at the Bon Ton Cafe from eleven until two.

The Knights of Phylas dances have proved a great success for the last two years and it is hoped that they will try and make this an annual affair from now on.

The Boosters' Primer
It is a fundamental principle in the science of building that the foundation must be sufficiently sound to support the super-structure. Whenever this principle is disregarded, trouble is sure to follow.
This principle is as sound in the realm of city building as it is in the realm of architecture. Any attempt to build up a city without a sound foundation will prove a dismal failure.
Underlying all attempts to build up Janesville industrially, there must be the foundation of a spirit of community of interest. Without this spirit for a foundation, it is futile to expect new factories to locate in our midst.
While there are some factories with a nation-wide market, asking only for a plot of ground for the buildings and a fair labor market, the vast majority of the factories seeking new locations depend upon local markets. With such factories the question of first importance is: "Do the people appreciate their home industries and do they give them their support?"
Until a community learns to properly support its home production it can not well expect to serve as a safe foundation for additional production. The development in youth must be bound that it may vigor in manhood.
In time man will realize the double power he holds in the pocketbook. The day will yet come when he will use his pocketbook with a two-fold end in view—to satisfy his needs and to promote the well being of his community. With this intelligence once acquired, the problems now confronting the may booster organizations will be solved. Upon such a foundation it will not be difficult to build an industrial center.
It will not be long when it will be considered as improper for a man to secure his living out of a community and place nothing back, as it is now considered improper for a farmer to get his grain out of the land and return nothing into it.

Between worry over his own condition and the showing of his team, the New York Yankees, Frank Chance doubtless feels that the contract that he got from Frank Farrell early in the spring could have stood another cipher or two. And Chance is supposed to be the highest salaried manager in baseball.

National League dopplists were way to the bad this year. With Tinker and Chance gone, it was figured the Cubs would rally in the rear, but they have been steadily winning. The Phillies looked down upon, have been playing good ball. Cincinnati, with Tinker at the helm, was thought to have a good club, but the Reds have been marching downward. Pittsburgh, picked for top place, is wobbling badly while St. Louis and Brooklyn are playing a grand brand of ball.

C. K. G. Billings, star string of Grand Circuits have arrived at North Randall farm from a winter's rest and preparation at Memphis. In the string are Champion Uhlman, Charley Mitchell, Lewis Forrest, Nancy Royce and Burning Star.

Larry Jajole, the great second baseman of the Cleveland club, has made a wonderful record as an extra base hitter since he went into the big league. His hits starting with 1896 and including 1912 have netted him 1,000 extra bases. He has made 553 doubles, 156 triples and 75 home runs. His best record with the Naps was in 1904, when he connected for 33 extra bases.

BASEBALL CHATTER.

Some of our noted baseball experts declare that the Athletics are lucky.

Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis, and Frank Klaus, of Pittsburgh, join up as the leading candidates for the midweight championship. Both have been winning big contests of late. Klaus added to his fame when he stopped George Carpenter, and won from Billy Papke on a foul in Paris. Dillon this year has beaten George Chip, Bob Moha, and has drawn with Barney Williams.

Cy Seymour, once a Giant and once a Red and now with Boston has been playing ball since 1893. Since he failed as a southpaw with the Giants many years ago, Cy has been playing the outfield. Seymour once struck out fourteen men and gave eleven bases on balls in a single game. Stallings may give Cy a try on the mound before the season ends.

All the sports on the continent may attend the Georges Carpenter-Bombardier Velis match at Ghent, Belgium May 25, but it seems to be a foregone conclusion with them that Carpenter will lose. However, the Frenchman won his and there's a chance that he may get one over on the Bombardier the same as Gunboat Smith did.

University of Pennsylvania apparently has the best college pitcher of the season in Captain Inlay. Inlay held Princeton to two hits last week and shut the Tigers out 2 to 0. Another good-looking rah-rah knicker, Fred ten of Harvard, who has been mowing down the opposition in the intercollegiate series.

Sure they are lucky. All good teams are lucky. The old Dartmouth pitcher, Ralph Glaze, with the Boston Americans, is now managing the Beaumont team in the Texas League. If the annual baseball series between Harvard and Yale is to be the odd game, it will be played on Ebbett's field, Brooklyn, June 21.

It looks as if the team that Hugh Duffy has placed in Portland will be able to do its share in making a hot race in the New England League this season. Milan, Moeller and Shanks form a trio of gardeners that can hold its own with the best of them.

From all accounts "Chance Day" at Chicago, May 17, in honor of the former Cubs boss, will be the last word in the "welcome to our soap factory" thing.

The National League schedule allowed the Cubs to play the Reds every day, Johnny Evers would still be sad, because he is unable to play against the Highlanders.

Prof. C. Lewis, acting president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, is a former-league pitcher. He was a member of the Boston champions of '98 and '99.

Outfielder Mann, recently purchased by the Boston Braves from Buffalo, is showing the real league stuff. His batting and fielding has been quite a help to the Braves.

The Detroit pitchers have been forced to live a miserable life on the field of battle this season. Even Moss Dubuc has been slammed and likewise whalloped to a fare-thee-well.

Pitcher Cy Falkenberg, of the Naps, has a new ally. In a recent game Manager Birmingham asked Cy the reason for so much wildness. "I'll tell you," replied Falkenberg confidentially, "let them get on so that I could warm up throwing."

For several years past the Cleveland Naps have curled up and whined after making a real fight for the pennant. But Manager Birmingham says the old doings of the Naps are off that they will "turkey trot" up yonder and stick there.

WITH THE BOXERS. Jess Willard will have to go some when he stacks up against Unbeaten Smith at San Francisco May 17.

By Jimmy, Atlanta fans will witness a Jim Dandy muss when Jim Flynn and Jim Savage clash May 12.

Gilbert Gallant, who recently won a decision over Battling Nelson in Boston, is after a match with Joe Rivers. Al Palmer, who recently underwent a surgical operation in New York, will not be able to box again till next fall.

Numerous friends of Champion Kilbane believe that he got the worst of the decision in his bout with Johnny Dundee. But the best of the critics will admit that Kilbane made a fine showing against the champ.

JUDGE HUNTER TALKS ON TRACK CONDITION; SUMMER'S PROSPECTS

First of Series of Articles by Famous Starting Judge on the Harness Game.

(By "Buck" Hunter.) While the revival of the light harness game in Janesville is still in its infancy, the successful race meet held last August and the prospect of the coming meeting this summer, has placed Janesville on the map as one of the centers for the light harness racing in the state. There are some forty odd horses at present quartered at the track, some green ones, some of several seasons' campaigning and they are all being given their preliminary training under skillful horsemen.

Colonel "Buck" Hunter, one of the most successful and best known of the Wisconsin starting judges, who is making Janesville his headquarters for the summer months, is much interested in the present outlook at the local track and writes the following, the first of a series of articles, which will appear in the Gazette from time to time. There are few better authorities in the light harness game than Mr. Hunter, and his articles will be read with interest by all who delight in the game.

The fair grounds present a very attractive appearance these days. With the few warm days we have already had, you can see nothing but horses in any direction you may look.

MOTOR FIRE TRUCK HAS BEEN SHIPPED

New Piece of Apparatus for Janesville Fire Department Due to Arrive in City Next Week.

Janesville's new motor propelled hose wagon and chemical engine was shipped from the Seagrave Company's factory at South Columbus on Thursday and is due to arrive here by the middle of next week. It will come by the way of the Erie and Chicago Northwestern Railways. According to the contract made with the city delivery was guaranteed within ninety days time, which period expired May 4. In view of the fact that the Seagrave Company's factory, suffered from the floods, the completion and shipment of the truck at this time is a pleasant surprise to the Council and Fire Chief Henry Klein who had anticipated a more serious delay. The shipping bill was received by Chief Klein this morning. A demonstrator will be sent here by the manufacturer of the truck to put it through its paces before it is accepted by the city. He will remain to instruct the firemen in the operation of the machine if the Council and Fire Chief find it satisfactory. As seems very probable, until the truck is accepted and put into actual service it will be kept at the west side fire station. Its permanent home will be in the east side fire station and it will serve as a fire police patrol as well as a hose and chemical wagon.

through the busy thoroughfares of life, and many of them passed on unnoticed, but they are the warp and woof in the great drama of every day experience, and the ships continue to come and go, in every department of toil because loyalty and faithfulness are common virtues.

Life was compared to a voyage long before steam was discovered, and when the breeze which caught the sail was the only propelling power known to mariners. The voyage of life was ever a sailing voyage and the treacherous of storm-tossed seas is as old as the disciples' experience on the Sea of Galilee, and the importance of a staunch craft, well equipped for a long voyage has always been recognized.

When a new boat is launched it is as helpless as a new-born babe, and before it is placed in commission, and ready for service, much time is devoted to preparation and thorough equipment.

A five-masted schooner, under full sail, presents a pretty sight, with every yard of her fifteen sails drawing to a breeze, which throws the spray from her bow and leaves a wake of boiling water far astern. Every spar is as straight as an arrow, and every rope as taught as a violin string.

From the newly painted hull, to the flag which floats from her top-mast, everything speaks of preparation, and the storm which strikes her in mid-ocean, finds a staunch craft, ready for any emergency. The equipment had not been neglected.

Almost any kind of a boat can float around a quiet harbor, and but little power is required to keep it in motion, but the test of the craft is outside, on the great high seas, where the wind and waves conspire to create a tempestuous voyage.

When a life comes into being, it is more destitute of equipment than any newly launched craft, and after years of shelter in the home harbor and the best preparation that loving care and thoughtful consideration can furnish, the success of the voyage depends, not only on "the set of the sail," but the staunchness of the fibre which enters into the character.

It is always a pleasure to watch the little boats which never venture outside the harbor, but the craft which command respect and admiration are the ocean carriers, as they nose their way through the narrow channels with all the earmarks of contact with the elements.

These are the boats which are built for service, a part of the world's great fleet which tie continents together—the main arteries of trade and traffic.

The sea of life is favored with many quiet harbors, but no life is exempt from some stormy passages, and every craft should be equipped to stand the strain.

The mothers of the land, to whom we pay homage tomorrow, when we intended that the little voyagers, which they brought into being, should become either derelicts, or ship-wrecked mariners.

More than any other influence, they have contributed to the staunchness of equipment and many of them find their reward in the knowledge of hopes realized.

The generation, now active on the stage, and the one waiting for admission, owe to the mothers a debt of gratitude which they can never repay, and they can well afford to turn aside, for a day, and pay them reverence.

"Like the winds of the sea
Are the waves of fate,
As we voyage along through life;
It's the set of the soul
That determines the goal,
And not the calm, nor the strife."
—Anonymous.

The narrow channel, which marks the entrance to the land-locked New York harbor, is so tortuous that the big ocean schooners are often unable to navigate it, under sail, and so tugs are frequently employed to tow these heavily laden vessels out beyond the reefs and shoals, or bring them in under bare poles at the completion of a voyage.

This narrow channel is lined for miles with buoys of all descriptions. Some of them are equipped with bells which constantly ring, as they swing with the action of the waves, while a light which never goes out indicates their presence in the night.

Off Sandy Hook, some twenty miles from the Battery, is anchored a light-ship fully provisioned and equipped for service, whose business it is to respond to calls for aid of vessels in distress, as well as to mark a dangerous reef where many vessels have foundered.

Near by the pilot boats are constantly cruising, and watching for incoming liners, which never attempt to navigate the narrow channel without the aid of local men, who are thoroughly familiar with this much traveled highway.

The sailing date for many of these ocean greyhounds is Wednesday and Saturday and many of them arrive on the same day of the week. The sentiment expressed in the little poem will be appreciated by people who have listened to the salute of these great ships, as they meet in the narrow channel.

The passengers, who swarm the decks of the incoming boats, eager to catch the first glimpse of the home shore, wave a farewell to the outgoing travelers, as the boats pass within hailing distance, propelled not by any uncertain gale, but by the great engines, which thrust the life, down in the hold, far below the deck.

If you should have the good fortune to visit the engine room of one of these floating palaces you would reach it by backing down narrow stairways, clinging to the railing for dear life, as landing after landing was passed, and impressed with the intense heat which oppressed you as you stood at last in the presence of the great machines, so perfect in construction that not a stroke is lost in the pitch and roll of the wildest seas.

If the engine room seems warm, step over to the boiler room, where men, stripped to the waist and drenched with perspiration work like beavers to keep the immense furnaces stoked with fuel. There may be hotter places somewhere in the unexplored future, but the boiler room of the ocean liner is a veritable inferno, hot enough to satisfy any sort of ambition.

"The man on the bridge" has long been a familiar character, in song and story, and when he stands by his post, and goes down with the ship, in times of disaster, his name passes to history as one of the world's great heroes, but down in the bowels of the storm-tossed boat are men, covered with grime and worn out with service, who have stood by as loyally as the man on the bridge.

Deacon Phlegm has invented a sure receipt to beat the high cost of living. It is as follows:
Eat no meat.
Burn no gasoline.
Buy no fuel for the furnace.
Live entirely upon cornmeal mush.
Attend no theatrical entertainments whatever.
Make one suit of clothes last seven or eight years.
Cut out tobacco in all forms and smoke dockweed and whip sticks.
But the best way yet invented is to go and live with your wife's relatives.
Economy is not always to be praised. When a man smokes one corn-cob pipe for nineteen years he is not much of a friend to the community in which he lives.

The Bachelor's Choice.
The bachelor said,
I'm going to wed a queen,
A beauty right
Good to the sight.
A perfect girl, I ween.
She must be kind
And have a mind
That's brilliant through and through,
And must have grace

My Gold Crowns Are Absolutely 22 K Fine

No purer or better crowns ever left a dental office.

There are people in Janesville right now who are wearing crowns that I made for them the last two years ago, when I first came to this city.

If there can be any better recommendation than that, just let me know about it.

The demand for my services is steadily increasing.

People seem to appreciate what I am doing for them, both in painless work and moderate prices.

MAY INVITE WHOLE LEGISLATURE HERE TO INSPECT SITES

PLAN DISCUSSED FOR GALA HOLI-DAY TO CINCH STATE FAIR LOCATION IF POSSIBLE

COMMITTEE ENTHUSED

Express Delight Over Ideal Location Of Park and Pleasure Drive Park and Surrounding Country.

If the state fair is to be removed from Milwaukee to some other city in the state, Janesville stands a good chance of being selected. The local committee who expressed unqualified approval of the local track and grounds and opportunities for a successful fair held in Janesville. The committee will visit the third day of the fair at the Fox River valley next week and later will have a committee meeting in Madison to compare notes before making their report to the legislature. It is possible that there will be two reports, one from the committee of the legislature and it is certain that one will report favorably on removal of the fair from Milwaukee.

Should this be the case then will be the time for Janesville to invite the entire legislature here for the day to more fully explain the exact conditions and wonderful opportunities for a successful fair if Janesville is selected. Already estimates of the cost of such an undertaking, methods of handling the vast crowds who would throng the city on that day, are being taken up and it is possible that the matter will be referred to the directors of the newly organized Twenty Five Thousand club to work out.

Broadhead, Monroe, Mineral Point on the west, Milton Junction, Port Atkinson, Jefferson, Whitewater and Watertown to the east. Delavan, Lake Geneva, Beloit, Clinton and even some of the northern Illinois cities would be interested and would be sending large delegations to unite in giving the members of the legislature a rousing good time. It would be a Fourth of July celebration held in May and would place Janesville on the map as the Modern Woodland in the old days could not have done.

To say that Friday's demonstration of the spirit of Janesville business men in boosting their home town did not have an effect upon the legislative would be incorrect. One member expressed himself freely and stated he was ready to go back to Madison and vote to move the fair from Milwaukee to Janesville without any more delay. Others were more conservative, but all agreed Janesville had made a wonderful showing and would have due consideration. In fact, one Senator, who is bitterly opposed to moving the fair from Milwaukee, stated he favored Janesville if such a move was ordered by the legislature.

From the minute the committee arrived in the morning until the afternoon program was over last night, there was never a dull moment. In fact so pleased with Janesville and Janesville's hospitality were Assemblymen George Carpenter, A. G. Glickson and Charles Lutz that they remained over night in Janesville to see more of the city. Assemblymen Everett and Larson went to Racine for over Sunday. Mr. Everett's home, and Senators Lutz and Bickel and White and Assemblyman Conway went to Milwaukee on the late train regretting they could not stay over night.

The morning auto ride was just long enough to give the visitors an impression of Janesville. The long line of autos, with their banners, led by Marshal Putnam, set up a lively gallop through the city as they visited all portions of it. Then followed an hour and half before the committee members visited the Parker Pen factory and met friends and acquaintances about the city.

The dinner at noon was a work of art and the tables most handsome with their pink roses, shining silver and faultless service. Landlord J. F. Sweeney had outdone himself and his staff served at a public dinner in Janesville. It was as follows:

Radishes Green Onions
Fried Lake Trout, Drawn Butter
Potato Chips
Bread and Butter
Fillet of Beef—Larded Mushrooms
New Potatoes Asparagus
Hot Rolls
Peanut Sherbet
Head Lettuce Salad
Wafers
Strawberry Short Cake and Whipped Cream
Coffee

The speeches were not long enough just snappy enough to keep up the interest of the visiting committee and forceful enough to show that Janesville really wanted the fair and was willing to go to any legitimate end to secure it. Then followed the speech by auto to the driving park where the committee inspected the site, watched a fast mile event between J. S. N. owned and driven by former State Treasurer C. Nichols, president of the Park Association, and C. Putnam's handsome little colt and President Junior, the property of Mr. Millard of La Crosse.

One of the interesting facts that was forced home on the committee was that despite the fact the track had not been thoroughly worked out this spring and a hard rain had fallen Thursday evening, it was really dusty when the horses went around the mile stretch. This is one of the great drawbacks in Milwaukee where the track is built over springs, when wet weather sets in it becomes quagmire and delays training and racing all week at times and consequently the advantage shown the visitors was the location of the grounds, on a table land as flat as a floor with plenty of land in every direction to expand to should it be desired. Also the excellent water and fine climate and easy facilities for side tracks for shipping stock direct to the grounds from either road.

Then came the ride to Mt. Zion, the view from which J. G. Jeffris described as more beautiful than even the valley of Damascus, which Mahomet had declared was almost like Paradise. It was certainly a wonderful sight and the legislative committee enjoyed every minute of and one expressed it the sign placarded in the morning "Rock County is the Garden of the State" was not any exaggeration. Then came the run back to the city and out to the state institution for the blind, most interesting to the local residents and delightful to the legislators who had never seen the institution before.

Superintendent and Mrs. Hooper met the party, made them at home and explained the workings of the school. It proved one of the most interesting events of the long eventful day. Back at the hotel the reception committee bade farewell to each member as they departed. Their train and a delegation remained down town for supper with those who remained over and looked to their entertainment during the evening.

Janesville demonstrated that they could entertain and do it up in style. If the state fair is not located in this city it removed from Milwaukee it will be no fault of the men who worked tooth and nail yesterday, to convince the legislators nor of some of the members of the investigating committee who expressed unqualified approval of the local track and grounds and opportunities for a successful fair held in Janesville.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR AUTO SERVICE

Golf Club Members Can Go to and from the Grounds by Automobile This Summer.

Arrangements for automobile service to and from the golf grounds were made with the members of the golf club last evening. A schedule of trips has been made for club members, dependent upon whether there are two or more passengers for the trip, so that car without the garage including Sunday. Trips will be made about 1:30, 2:00, 2:30, 3:00 and 4:00 p. m., and later if necessary on Wednesdays. Trips on Sunday afternoon will be made as necessary. The fare per trip will be 15 cents each way, children at the same rate and no less than two fares will be accepted as a trip. Automobiles will start from the Kemmerer Garage, pick up and deposit passengers at Baker's drug store and Meyers House corners. Will not call for or deliver passengers to their homes except at their individual expense. As many passengers as service is dependent upon the cooperation of the members as the club pays the difference between the trip fares and the trip charge which means that as many passengers as trip should be carried as possible.

Heretofore the regular opening of the season has occurred Decoration Day, but the house will be open much earlier this year.

J. P. Baker of the games committee has secured subscriptions from members to provide new steel lockers for the clubhouse of the golf house which will be a vast improvement. The season starts off with every indication of being one of the most interesting in its history. The house committee has their entertainments, lawn and card parties arranged. The games committee of schedules prepared for the early part of the season and several interesting events are included. The greens committee is having considerable time to the addition of the course and the putting greens are in splendid shape.

A number of new members have been elected to active membership and the list of names indicated their intention of joining the club.

TEN FREIGHT CARS A MASS OF DEBRIS; WRECK NEAR AFTON

Early Northwestern Freight to Belvidere in Serious Smash-Up in Which No One is Hurt.

Beloit was without train service on the Northwestern line today as the result of a serious wreck four miles south of Afton early this morning in which ten freight cars of the Janesville to Belvidere freight were completely demolished, and the track torn up for the distance of half a mile.

The accident was the result of a broken flange on one of the cars. The Madison division wrecker was called in to clear the scene and all available section men were hurried from Beloit to clear away the mass of debris and repair the track. All early passenger trains were sent through by way of Clinton and Hartford and it was not expected that traffic through Beloit would be resumed before this evening.

The wrecked freight, known to railroad men as the "Belvidere train," left the Janesville yards early this morning with baggage car J. Paddock and Conductor W. Goodsell, both of Baraboo, in charge. The train registered at Afton at four o'clock.

At the point where the accident occurred the engine and half the train had rounded a bend in the track and was proceeding on its way. The train was said to be running at a fairly high rate of speed. When the broken flange struck a defective spot in the rail the trucks were swept from the rails and the train was derailed for a considerable distance. Five cars were thrown into the river.

The first car to leave the track was a baggage car, which was completely wrecked and the trucks and wheels completely swept clear from underneath the car. The high rate of speed that the train was traveling at the time of the derailment and the great weight which the cars were sufficient to drive the front end of the car into the ground for a depth of four feet. The next car was overturned and had slid down the embankment into the river. The cars were so badly wrecked that they were not expected to be repaired before late this afternoon.

The unwrecked portion of the train was taken to Afton so as to allow the engine a chance to work. The cars were lifted from the track and dinged down the embankment with all possible speed so as to give the track boys an opportunity to repair the track for traffic.

Passenger trains from Fort Atkinson were delayed this morning because of the derailment of a carload of coal which left the track in the vicinity of Fort Atkinson. Little damage was done and the derailed car was placed back on the track by the crew.

MEXICAN SITUATION DESPERATE; HUERTA FAILS; YOUNG DIAZ TURNS AGAINST HIM

Top, President Huerta (left) and Felix Diaz. Bottom, Venustiano Carranza. The situation in Mexico is said to be more desperate today than it has been at any time since the abdication of President Diaz. Confidential advice to the state department at Washington relate that President Huerta has not made the slightest headway toward the suppression of the rebellion. Young Felix Diaz has now turned against him; while in the north of Mexico, Venustiano Carranza, the most active rebel, is said to control the best organization in all the fighting with which the country has been afflicted.

CALORIC Demonstration

You and your friends are invited to attend and partake of the many good things prepared in the "CALORIC" Fireless Cook Stove.

You will be amazed at the seemingly impossible things it does. It bakes and roasts food in its raw state without first partially cooking it on an ordinary stove or reheating it before serving, as well as steams, stews and boils. The "Caloric" saves fully seventy-five per cent in fuel alone and nearly all the time, and work, and all the bother. It requires no attention after the food is placed into it. There is no danger of burning or of food being overdone. The "Caloric" will pay for itself many times over. After using it you would not part with it for many times its cost. Come to our store on the date mentioned below and you will learn how to reduce your meat and grocery bills. MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY MAY 12, 13, 14. H. L. MONOTONOUS "HEP, HEP, HEP" FROM THE BLEACHERS WORKS ON WILLIAMS' NERVES

Gus Williams. If the bleacherites of St. Louis ever get after Gus Williams, the Browns star gardener, it will end his baseball career unless he has changed his ways since he was with Montgomery in the Southern League last season. About the middle of the season Montgomery played New Orleans. It was a five game series. In the first game Gus dropped a fly, and the bleacherites started the monotonous "Hep, hep, hep" as he walked to the bench. This was continued throughout the series. It worked on Gus' nerves so that when he got back to Montgomery he jumped the club.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"I GUESS IT'S NEAR ENOUGH."

THE pupils in a cooking school were making some cream sauce for the first time. They had been told to mix one tablespoonful of flour and one quarter of a cup of cold milk, stir until perfectly smooth and then pour in three-quarters of a cup of hot milk. Two girls stood side by side stirring vigorously. Finally one reached for the hot milk. "What! Have you got your smooth already?" asked the other girl, who was still struggling with some obstinate lumps. "Not quite," said the first girl impatiently, "but I guess it's near enough," and she poured in the hot milk.

The other girl went on stirring a little while longer until the mixture was really smooth. The first girl's sauce was lumpy and imperfect. The second girl's sauce was smooth and light. And "I guess it's near enough" was responsible for the difference.

Could anything be more typical of the attitude of mind which produces the mediocre worker than that phrase, "I guess it's near enough?"

It seems like a simple matter to do a thing just as one is told to, or exactly as one knows it should be done—in other words, to do it right, and yet how many people never rise above mediocrity because they haven't the ambition or the stick-to-it-iveness or the time to do a thing just exactly right!

Especially does this seem to be lacking in this hurry-driven country of ours. Why is it that "made in Germany," or France, or England, or any other country than America, is a hallmark of honor upon any article? Partly, of course, because of the feeling which some people have that anything which comes from a distant land must be more desirable than the simple home product; but more because the foreign-made articles are more likely to be sound and last longer.

They are made by people who have time enough to do things not "near enough" right, but right.

The very simplest thing can be done in the makeshift way of "near enough" right, or it can be done just exactly right, and the difference between the two methods even in this simplest thing is very wide.

The world needs workers who have the patience, the ambition and the time to do even the simplest thing, the making of cream sauce or the copying of a business letter, just right. It will soon find plenty of bigger things for them to do in the same way.

slips away from the mold more readily.

Mousse and parfait, as well as the individually served biscuit, are often served with fruit and flavored sauces. Parfaits are frequently served in sherbet or punch glasses and capped with whipped cream and a candied cherry.

Coffee Parfait.

Pour a syrup of one-half of a cupful of sugar and one cupful of strong coffee over two beaten eggs. Cook this in a double boiler until it thickens. Remove from stove and when it is cool combine it with one pint (two cupfuls) of thick cream beaten until stiff—or the whip from thinner cream. Fill molds and pack in ice and salt for three or four hours.

Whip four cupfuls of cream until thick. Flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla. Fold in one cupful of walnut meats and one cupful of sliced figs until all are included. Pack in mold and freeze for three hours. Serve with chocolate sauce. This cream can be used with one pound of gelatin dissolved in one-quarter cupful of cold water.

The Kitchen Cabinet

IF PANTRIES with their dark, impassioned faces, Had been given the power of human speech.

What is the lesson that, from lowly places, Each tender, fragrant voice to us would teach?

Perchance, in tones like tinkling dewdrops sighing, What their lives tell, their velvet lips would say:

"Forget life's trials that are round these things, And be the brightest in the darkest day."

CHEAPER MEAT.

It is interesting to note the methods of serving meats and the variety of prices charged for the same cut. One feels that twenty-five cents a pound for calf's liver is almost prohibitive, yet we notice in other places it may be bought for ten to fifteen cents a pound.

One must study the home market, and by pricing the different cuts learn what the prices are for flank, chuck, shoulder piece, neck and round steak. Brisket and hock are used for stews and soup. Shank for stewing and soup, and four ribs which may be used for roasting. By using a small amount of meat, which gives flavor to the dish, one may cut the cost of meat. Hamburg steak or chicken mixed with macaroni and baked makes a good substantial dish with very little meat.

Beef Loaf.—Take two pounds of hamburger steak, mix with half a cup of crumbs, season with salt, pepper, onion juice; add two well beaten eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sweet cream, form into a loaf, place in a deep pan, fill the pan two-thirds full of boiling water, lay slices of bacon over the top, then put peeled potatoes into the pan and bake until the potatoes are done. Serve with the gravy in the pan slightly thickened.

If liver is reasonable in price, cook it, after parboiling in bacon fat or with a slice or two of bacon or salt pork. After frying, remove the bacon and liver, add a little flour and milk and water to make a nice smooth gravy.

Round steak pounded and covered with flour, then brown in a little fat; add a sliced onion and cover with boiling water and cook for an hour or two on the back part of the stove, makes a good substantial and not expensive meat dish.

COUNTESS OF CREWE ENTERTAINS KING

Countess of Crewe.

The Countess of Crewe entertained the king and queen of England on the occasion of their visit to the Crewe station and railway works recently. Lady Crewe, who is one of the most notable hostesses on the Liberal side in England, was Lady Margaret Primrose, daughter of Lord Roseberry. She married the present marquis as his second wife in 1899. They have one son, two years old.

throughout the mold. Fill so that when the cover is put on some of the mixture will be forced out. Cover the top of the mold (before putting on the lid) with buttered paper or soft wrapping paper a little larger than the surface to be covered. Put on the cover, and bury the mold in the freezing mixture for from three to four hours. If this method is followed no salt can possibly enter the mold.

The ordinary proportion for freezing is three parts of ice to one of rock salt, but here we suggest two parts of ice to one of rock salt. When rock salt and ice about the same size are mixed, the salt melts the ice in order to unite with it.

In this way the salt too, dissolves so that both sides are liquified. The heat which causes this to happen is drawn from the ice cream which is to be frozen, as it is by the extraction of heat that the freezing process takes place. The best ice for freezing is porous or snow ice, as the holes permit the salt's easy access to the ice, causing it to melt rapidly.

Guard Against Salt. Do not draw off the water in the freezer until the ice floats on top (this liquid being colder than the unmelted ice), because the freezing process at the height and the water from this time on will rise in temperature and can then be drawn off. If necessary, at this point, move the freezing mixture can be added.

Wash the mold in cold water; remove all brine and wipe perfectly dry. Remove cover and paper. Invert the mold on a flat dish on a paper towel and if the room is warm it should slip out comfortably. If it does not, rinse a cloth in hot water and wrap it about the mold for a minute or so until the contents slide out readily.

It is better not to let mousses or parfaits freeze very hard, as they are difficult to remove from molds and are not so pleasant to eat. Very often, to obviate the difficulties encountered on removing these tightly frozen desserts, the mold is lined with a sherbet whose melting point is higher than the mousses or parfait. The sherbet melts more quickly and therefore

HEART HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a fellow and I love him dearly. I don't think I could give him up, but he has tried to insult me and I am not that kind of a girl. Would you give him up? He is mad at me. Would you do? He is mad at me.

Every little while I get a letter something like this.

A man insults a girl in the most shameful way in the world. The girl says she still loves him. Yet the girl says she still loves him. I will say this—Such a girl cannot be pure in her heart. Also, she has no respect for goodness in a man. She will probably turn down a good man for the sake of a bad one who happens to fascinate her. Then, if she is in trouble because of the bad man, she asks the pity of the world.

If girls were stricter with such men there would be fewer men who would dare to insult women. If all men knew that their women would be so strict for being low they would soon be better men. But as it is, they count on being forgiven, no matter what they say or do.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a widow of sixty-five, healthy and of good habits. Am deeply in love with a lady twenty years younger. She is a widow of less than a year. Is there too much difference in our ages at this time of life. I know we will be happy. I will do all in my power to make her so. She wants to wait till after a year for fear people will talk. I want her so badly she thinks it will not be right to marry before. Is there any wrong in that? I will be willing to do what is right for her. I am so lonely for a companion. Will you kindly advise me as to what I should do? I am a widow of less than a year. Is there too much difference in our ages at this time of life. I know we will be happy. Things Worth Knowing.

Where ice cannot be had, butter may be kept cool in this way. Put in a shallow vessel of cold water, and cover with an inverted new earthen flower-pot. The pot should rest in the water. Care for this was butter, if put in the cellar or any other cool place, will keep hard even in hot weather.

Castors slipping out of furniture often cause a busy housekeeper a good deal of trouble. This may easily be avoided by winding rubber bands around the shanks of the castors before slipping them into the sockets. A good band will last a long time and may easily be replaced.

For heating on a broiling day an old griddle iron is fine. The griddle fits on the stove after a lid is removed and brings the iron nearer the fire.

The Table. Dandelion Salad.—Select the tenderest leaves, wash thoroughly, drain, then lay on ice to crisp. Put into a salad-bowl, dress with salt, pepper, oil and lemon juice or vinegar, and garnish with a couple of hard-boiled eggs cut in quarters.

Potato Omelet.—Take a large freshly baked potato and scoop out the sides with a spoon. Fill with a mixture of paprika or white pepper, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dessert-spoonful of lemon juice and the yolks of two eggs. Bake in a hot oven for five minutes. To be tried fold in the whites of the eggs, beaten to a stiff froth. Fry in a well-greased, very hot pan and serve immediately on a hot dish.

FACE DISGRACEFUL WITH RASH

Large Scabs Would Form, Fester and Break. Itching and Burning. Kept from Sleeping. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—"My trouble of skin disease started merely as a rash on my face and neck; but it grew and kept getting worse until large scabs would form, fester and break. This was just on the one side of my face, but it soon scattered to the other side. I suffered a great deal, especially at night on account of the itching and burning. I would scratch it and of course that irritated it very much. This rash was on my face for about two years, sometimes breaking out lots worse and forming larger sores. It kept me from sleeping day or night for a couple of months. My face looked disgraceful, and I was almost ashamed to be seen by my friends.

"A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I would bathe my face with hot water and a lot of Cuticura Soap, then I would put on the Cuticura Ointment. In less than two days' time, the soreness and inflammation had almost entirely disappeared, and in four weeks' time you could not see any of the rash. Now my face is without a spot of any kind. I also used them for my scalp and hair. They cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Fanny Hutchins, Feb. 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT ADVISES ABOUT GARBAGE

(Milwaukee Free Press.) "Drain all garbage; wrap it in paper. Deposit only wrapped garbage in the garbage can."

This is the advice given by the health department in the Healthologist. "Drain and wrapping will eliminate fully fifty per cent of the garbage nuisance," says the article. "It will do much toward retarding decay, will prevent odor and will keep the can clean. Also, the paper wrapping will reduce the fly nuisance."

The old, crude method of carelessly dumping garbage into the can is too obsolete to tolerate. "With the approach of hot weather the garbage question will become an important one. It is therefore necessary to consider careful disposal at this time. The draining and wrapping processes are the first essentials. "Incidentally, once the method of draining and wrapping garbage has been adopted, it will never be discontinued. While at first thought, it may seem that extra work is involved, this is not the case. It is just as easy to deposit table refuse into a colander or sink drain as into a pail, when left in the colander or drain for ten minutes, it is perfectly drained. It can then be dumped upon a newspaper, wrapped and placed in the garbage can with more ease than a heavy bucket or pail can be carried."

LAKE MILLS CONTRACTS FOR ELECTRIC CURRENT

(Lake Mills Leader.)

At a joint meeting of the city council and the Electric Light & Water Commission last week Wednesday evening, Philip Grossman, of the T. M. E. R. & L. Company of Milwaukee, was present, and explained the proposed plan of the company to furnish power for the Water & Light Company of this city for a period of three years, with an opportunity to continue indefinitely or to be revoked six months after either party to the contract shall give notice of a desire to quit. It was decided by the council and the commission to accept the contract and the mayor and the city clerk were authorized to sign the contract.

We understand that it is the intention of the power company to run the line from Watertown to the Fort, crossing the Aztalan road between the Watertown and the Rock rivers, with branches running to Lake Mills and Johnson Creek. The contract calls for the completion of the line to Lake Mills on or before September 15, 1913. Some of the advantages to be gained by the purchase of the power are as follows: A continuous 24-hour service, an even current, cheaper power, estimated to be a saving to the city from $1,100 to $1,800 over the present plan of operating, and an opportunity to increase the load without the investment in larger boilers and a larger engine.

MUNICIPAL MACHINE SHOP SAVES SALT LAKE CITY MONEY

Salt Lake City, Utah.—A modern machine shop, which the superintendent of waterworks estimates will save the city about $1,000 a year in cost of material and apparatus for the water department, has been installed at the workshop and stables in City Creek Canyon, and is now in operation. The new shop was inspected by the commissioner of waterworks, Superintendent C. F. Barrett, William Bowen of the Commercial Club Water Committee and newspaper men. Modern lathes, turning machines and other machinery necessary for an up-to-date machine shop have been installed and placed in charge of an expert machinist and his helpers. Although the shop has been in operation only a short time and all the machines have but recently been installed, it has been found that the machinists can turn out castings, valve stems and such apparatus for less than half the market cost.

PUT NAMES OF STREETS IN TILE LETTERS IN WALKS

Corpus Christi, Texas.—Mayor Miller has authorized Engineer Stevens to place an order for tile letters which will be placed in the street corners in the cement paving. The letters are blue on white base and are similar to those used in all of the larger cities of the state. Contractors placing cement sidewalks will be furnished the letters free of charge and will be required to place the letters on all of the walks. Engineer Stevens has just placed in his office a cement testing machine which will be used to test the durability of all cement used in street construction.

KENOSHA TAKES STEPS TO FIGHT TYPHOID FEVER

Kenosha, Wis.—The city council took the first step to fight the advancing typhoid epidemic in Kenosha at the meeting on Monday evening when by a unanimous vote the water commission was directed to proceed at once to the installation of a plant for the treatment of the water of the city with chlorine of lime. The estimated cost of the plant will be in the neighborhood of $1,000, and it is thought that it can be installed within the next thirty days. Members of the water commission and the board of health have made a careful study of chlorination and they believe that the condition of the water will be materially improved by the use of the process. City Engineer Brennan declared that while the use of hypochlorite of lime would not bring an absolutely pure water that it would make the water safe for table use.

OHIO BUILDS BRICK ROADS FOR MAIN THOROUGHFARES

The state of Ohio is using brick roads for some of the main market thoroughfares, with the aid of state and county funds. The state provides part, the county part, the township part and the abutting property the remaining fraction, 10 per cent. The system is far enough along to discover that the demands for the improvement during the means available, although the state is now making several millions a year. The change of the trunk-line country roads to a permanent surface like that has all the effect upon the community in Ohio which has followed from the concrete roads in the country containing Detroit. In the latter experience farmers on the tributary roads offer to put up the money for building their own frontage provided the county commissioners will connect them with the main thoroughfare.

BELOIT'S NEW FIRE TRUCK SOON TO BE DELIVERED

Beloit's new auto fire truck, which was ordered several months ago by the council, was shipped last Saturday morning from the factory. Information received by the department today. The apparatus is expected to arrive here the first of next week.

The new truck was manufactured to order by the American-LaFrance Co., which built the first truck which is now in use. It is slightly larger than the present machine and has no trimmings instead of brass which are used on the machine at the central station. This will make it easier to keep it in first class condition as the nickel shows dirt less than the brass. The truck will be stationed at the central station while the present one will be sent to No. 2. This will allow of the disposal of another team. It is hoped that all the apparatus may be motorized as rapidly as practicable.—News.

LA CROSSE WILL OIL FIFTY CITY BLOCKS

About fifty blocks of macadamized street will be oiled, this spring, and the board of public works was ordered to purchase four tank cars of road oil from the National Oil Company. The meeting of the committee on streets and city improvements of the common council last night. The board will pay $4,000 a hundred gallons for about 40,000 gallons of oil. It was voted to divide the oil into two equal parts, the north and south sides of the city.—La Crosse Tribune.

RECOMMEND NEW PLANT FOR SEWAGE DISPOSAL

(Madison State Journal.) A purification plant that would care for about 5,000,000 gallons per day in the year 1930, with the capacity of being increased to 7,500,000 gallons per day in excess of this, or 7,500,000 gallons per day is the standard set forth in the design for a change in the sewage disposal plant in the city of Chicago. Consulting Engineer J. W. Alvord, Chicago, to City Engineer Parker. His system would reduce the cost of building and yet not take away anything from its efficiency. Mr. Alvord endorsed the plans of the city engineer, saying that they are the type which should be adopted for this city and which have proved successful elsewhere. The details of concrete construction and suggestions were not touched upon by Mr. Alvord. All engineering problems of design were left to the city engineer.

CITY OF GREEN BAY HAS PLAY DIFFICULTIES

(Green Bay Gazette.) An appeal on behalf of the "kids" who have only one playground on the east side, was made before the city council last night by Robert Minahan. He asked the aldermen not to plant grass and shrubs in St. John's park, but to let it remain as a breathing place for boys and girls. He said he had seen the boys living around the park had a legitimate complaint about the noise and swearing, but said he thought the money would be better spent if a park supervisor was put on the job instead of a man to cut the grass and care for flowers if they are planted. Mr. Minahan said he had seen the boys driven out of St. John's park in the territory adjoining St. John's park and now there is no other place for the "kids" to go, so they all go there.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

Sometimes I wonder if we average American women realize the honor, the dignity, responsibility of the position we hold in one of the most important concerns in this great land of ours—namely the American home. A man rises in the morning and goes forth to play the game of life in the open, where no quarter is expected asked or given.

He is who must, for the sake of the dear ones at home, put his shoulder to the wheel and stand between the world and them as their protector and their shield.

He must keep busy and make good, deal him the manner of a home he comes to. He is toiled all day to earn the price to maintain that home.

Along the lines of compensation has he not the right to look forward to a clean, tidy home and a royal welcome? He says: "There's nothing this side of the grave more satisfying, more encouraging to a weary man than the unclouded welcome of a true wife."

When a man slips under the rope and stands with the noble band of women who can proudly lay claim to the title of a "good true wife." But how about the "unclouded welcome" part of it? Candidly—how many of us can stay in the ring now? All of us, I'm afraid not.

When a man asks a woman to be his wife he can bestow on her no greater honor we all acquiesce in that. The majority of our men seem to realize the responsibilities of married life. They get right down to the prosaic, but essentially necessary task of earning a living and making from all the world to be his heart's desire, his dream of home—the mother of his children.

Again I say—I wonder if we American women realize the responsibility of the position we hold as a man's wife; as the mother of his children? We like to think of ourselves as our husband's partner as the vice-president of our firm. It's business terms that seem to appeal to us now.

Do we live up to the titles we give to ourselves? Do we conscientiously endeavor to "make good" as a partner or as a vice-president?

Do we systematically spend our days in our husband's absence, in working with and for him, as he for us?

Are we making of our home a sound financial foundation, as well as a haven of refuge from outside toil, care and worry?

Today if we employed the methods in an office that we do in our homes, would we be kept for efficiency?

Sometimes, thinking of the greatest that seems to be assailing so many of our women, the disquieting thought crops up in my mind, "Is this vitally important position of 'home maker' too big for the average American woman?"

For a man to be told "he's too big for his job" is complimentary in the extreme. On the other hand, for a man to be told that his job is too big for him is enough to set him seriously thinking.

The same applies to us women does it not? Let all seriousness let us ask ourselves this question: "Is the position of 'home maker' too big for the average American woman?"

Maybe They Were.

Little Clara has a habit of sticking her feet out of the bed covers. One hot night, on being told not to do so, she obeyed in silence for a little while and then suddenly said, "Oh, mamma, let me put my feet out! They're choking."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

STONEWALL JACKSON.

(By Howard L. Ramm.)

This is the 50th anniversary of the death of Stonewall Jackson, Confederate general. General Jackson was not named Stonewall by his parents, who preferred Thomas Jonathan, but by the entire Union army after it had run up against Jackson in the performance of his duty.

The only fact that Stonewall Jackson ever turned his back to were liquor, gambling and other similar pursuits.

General Jackson were born in the mountains of Western Virginia. When a mere child, was made an orphan without any action on his part. After attending country school and learning how to throw the damp paper was with unerring accuracy, young Jackson worked his passage into West Point and took the full course, including the 32d degree in plain and fancy hazing.

When the Mexican war broke out, Stonewall broke out with it, and returned home with a collection of shoulder straps which caused him so much embarrassment that he had to cover it with a heavy undergrowth of whiskers.

At the opening of the Civil war Jackson offered his sword to his state, which commissioned him to attack and defeat, scatter, separate, segregate and decimate the Union army whenever he felt in the mood of doing so.

As Jackson was in this mood about nine-tenths of the time, his methods of doing business became very annoying to the Union generals, who never were able to whip him with any success except in the press dispatches, to the northern papers.

General Jackson had the disagreeable spirit of naming around the Union army circles and while he was able to whip him with any success except in the press dispatches, to the northern papers.

It was while engaged in one of these movements that Jackson encountered the fire of some of his own men and fell. His death stilled a valiant, chivalrous heart and deprived the Confederate army of its most successful general.

MOTHERLOVE is just as deep-rooted in beasts of the jungle as it is in humans. From the moment the offspring of those animals whose ferocity is world famed, have seen the light of day the parents undergo a softening influence which leaves her a creature that lavishes her love and caresses upon her baby, resorting to all the little tricks of motherhood that one looks for in a nursery where the first born of the household nestles in the arms of its doting parent.

And then, too, that same ferocity and tigerish hate that a mother manifests when her baby is in peril, or has been criticized, is reflected ten-fold in wild beasts when the safety of their little ones is at stake. Of course we all know that each and every baby is the most wonderful thing in the world—that is in the eyes of its parents and near-kin.

These things are just as true in the New York Zoological Park as anywhere else. There is just as much jealousy among the animal parents and the guardians of the babies there as anywhere else over the respective merits of their offspring and wards.

There are nearly four hundred babies in the park now, all wards of the Zoological Society and the City of New York, and each baby has a keeper to eulogize it and prate of just what a wonderful youngster it is.

Here are a few claims to distinction the Zoo-keepers set forth for their wards and each waxes wroth if the slightest doubt is cast upon his assertion:

Zaza, the zebra colt, is the stubbornest baby in the Zoo.
Kiddie, the Rocky Mountain goat, is the most poliocking youngster.
Nigger, the Brazilian Woolly Monkey, is the most affectionate and the biggest cry baby.
The Orang and Chimpanzees are the most highly educated.
Uncle Sam, the buffalo calf, is the gentlest American baby.
Tiny, the kangaroo rat, is the smallest baby.
Mike and Nettie, the pygmy hippopotamus, are the costliest.
Rusky, the tapir, is the queerest baby, and still little resemble her parents until full grown.
Alice, the 200-year-old tortoise, is still an infant and the youngest of her species in the park.
Lilly, the puma kitten, is the crankiest baby in the collection.
Mongol, the przewalsky wild horse colt, the most aristocratic.
Peggy, the musk ox, the most northern baby.
Raccoons, the most playful and mischievous.
Richmond, the Virginia wild deer fawn, the hungriest baby.
Tommy and Tumble, black bear cubs, get more spankings and give their keepers most worry.
Flip, the walrus, costs more to feed than all others.
Nile and Cleopatra, lion cubs, have the fastest voices.
Kitty, leopard cub, the most dangerous baby.
Teddy, the dick dick, presented to the park by Theodore Roosevelt after his African hunt and the only one of his kind in captivity.
Coyote puppies, known as the Suffragette babies, because their mother came from the original suffragette state.

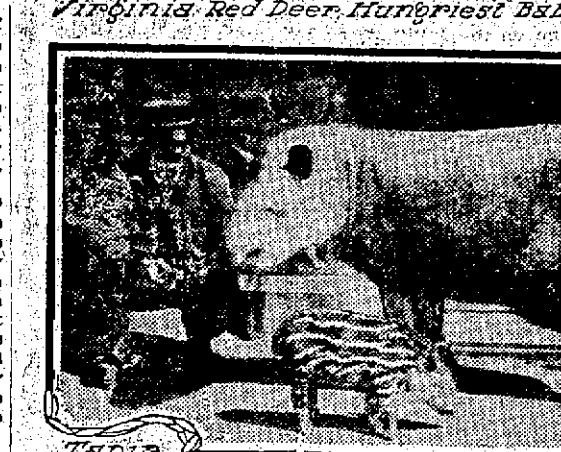

To Flip belongs the distinction of proving that soft-shell clams are the real and ideal baby food. He has added one hundred pounds to his bulk in the past six months and will double this gain within the next. He's an expensive little fellow, but as Mr. William T. Hornaday, director of the park, remarked, "He's worth it."

It costs in the neighborhood of $10 a day to feed Flip. That includes time for an expert opener of soft-shell clams who is kept busy four hours a day preparing Flip's meals. Flip's teeth are still too tender to open his own clams and as he eats fifty pounds at a time it can readily be seen that his title of most expensive baby is well earned. There is not another baby walrus in this country and only one other in the world and that in the Zoo at Hamburg, Germany.

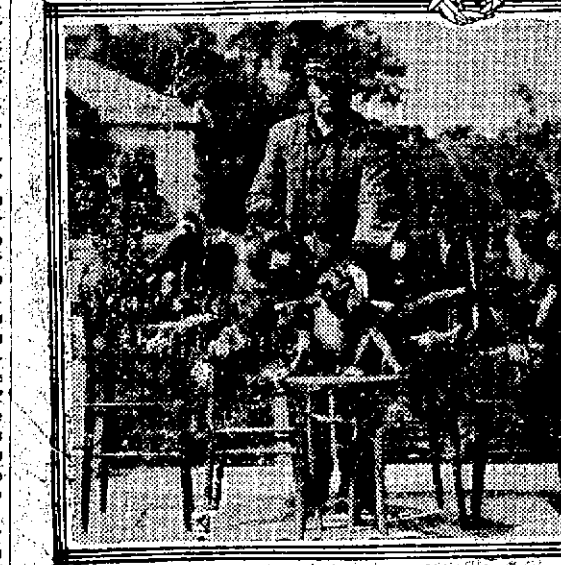

But Flip is rarely homesick for his cradle as he is for his friend and keeper, Charles Snyder, assistant curator of reptiles, that he is rarely alone. He always barks his joy at the sight of his friend and hops about on his flippers doing all sorts of queer antics as long as Snyder stays near. When he leaves him, though, his wail is pitiful to hear.

There is no animal more deeply loved in the park than little "Nigger," the Brazilian woolly monkey. He is as near human as it is possible for one of the baser animals to be, and he is as loyal as he is lovable. Nigger is idolized by his keepers and by the children of the officials of the society. He nestles as confidently in their arms as the most spoiled of babies. His tricks are intricate and he is mischievous and cute. He has the run of the turtle pen and big Alice, the baby of the lot, and he is close pals. He scampers over her back, shares his food with her and when he proffers her a nibble of his choicest tidbits she exercises the greatest care not to nip his fingers, for he is remembered, Alice, at a single clutch, could sever the arm or leg of a man. Nigger is the life of his section. He is so rare and costly that he is kept to himself and out of reach of the commoner breeds of monkeys who scamper and romp in their cages day in and day out. Nigger was born to be petted. He not only invites it but he demands it. He likes nothing better than to curl up in one's arms and snuggle his head down beneath a coat collar. But when he is put back in his cage he will weep and sob for an hour, or until some one of the keepers comes along and tempts him out of his hysterical state with a choice bit of food especially prepared for him.

Mike and Nettie won their sobriquet, "the most expensive babies," because of their purchase price, $15,000. Their species is nearly extinct and when they were captured in Central Africa last spring the bidding among animal collectors to buy them was keen and spirited. Agents of the Zoological Society finally came through with a bid of $15,000, and they were at once brought to New York. They are the last, it is said, of this diminishing tribe and there are standing offers for others of their kind far in excess of the paid for them.

Tapir, Runniest Baby

the old bachelor turtle, readily recalls the days on the Pacific coast when the Indians were freely discussing the visit of one they called Christopher Columbus who had just set sail for a visit to their relatives on the Atlantic coast. Alice exercises all the prerogatives her tender years demand and she is as coy and kittenish as the most unsophisticated debutante. But her keepers have hopes of her attaining years of discretion and assert that when she outgrows her kiddish ways she will be as dignified as her sister Martha.

the old bachelor turtle, readily recalls the days on the Pacific coast when the Indians were freely discussing the visit of one they called Christopher Columbus who had just set sail for a visit to their relatives on the Atlantic coast. Alice exercises all the prerogatives her tender years demand and she is as coy and kittenish as the most unsophisticated debutante. But her keepers have hopes of her attaining years of discretion and assert that when she outgrows her kiddish ways she will be as dignified as her sister Martha.

you'll notice, that every other "cat" in the house adds its voice and gives this pair the center of the stage. They can make night and day hideous when they start and it doesn't take a great deal to start them.

Kiddie, the Rocky Mountain baby goat, is the inventor of more games than any other youngster in the park. She, with her little playmates, climb and romp their way through life. "Bug in the gully" and other games of chase and hide and seek are in their repertoire and they can climb to dizzy heights over obstructions and precipices that are almost perpendicular. They are a merry, little group and children spend hours about their enclosure watching their antics.

John Quinn has charge of the deer range and his principal care just now is untangling the hard knots into which they get their long legs. These little fawn, especially Richmond of the Virginia Red Deer herd, can get his legs into most seemingly impossible entanglements and any other quadruped alive. Quinn has been working laboriously for a month to demonstrate to Richmond that his legs were meant for propulsion and not for such games as "cat's cradle" and the like.

When it comes to baby buffaloes New York has the finest collection in the world. Even out on the national range in Oklahoma the baby bison are not as fat and sleek and well-nourished as they are in the Bronx range. Twice when the New York herd became too large the young buffaloes were sent west to enhance the government herd. Mr. Sanborn has just returned from a visit to the national range and he asserts with great pride that but for the additions that come from the New York herd the national bison would have degenerated long ago. There are about twenty calves in the Bronx Society's enclosure now and they are a rugged, healthy-looking lot.

Not far from the lion house is to be found the wolf and fox dens and here the ever restless and alert wolves and coyotes pace restlessly to and fro in their enclosure, seemingly never still and giving no evidence of ever tiring. Their howls and growls are weird and depressing and there is no indication that their long period of captivity has tended to tame them or make them one wit more reconciled to their surroundings. Every once in a while visitors to the park are startled by an ear-splitting series of growls, howls and shrieks that emanate from the wolf dens. Their penetrating howls easily carry to the lion house and there the cry is taken up by lions, tigers, leopards, pumas and all the rest of the carnivorous menagerie, not far away, add to the din by their shrill trumpeting and so on down the line until the whole park is in an uproar.

Investigation rarely fails to prove that the uproar which always originates in the wolf dens is caused by the Caucasian, or milk-white, peacock which "fantasizes" the wolves and coyotes by strutting and spreading its magnificent and immaculate plumage before the eyes of its arch enemies. They become so enraged at sight of the peacock that they race feverishly up and down their enclosure, hurling themselves against the iron grating and giving other manifestations of their eagerness to seize the proud bird strutting before them at such a safe distance.

In the various preserves throughout the park there is practically every known variety of foreign and domestic game bird and water fowl. The pheasant runs just now are filled with the brilliant plumed cock birds who strut about while the more sombre hued mother birds trail along with their broods of chicks scratching at their feet. Nearby the pheasants are runs for wild turkey and the gobbles are magnificent bronze-breasted, and whined claps that would serve to prove a Thanksgiving Day feast for a score of men.

Dr. W. Root Blair, the chief veterinarian of the park, has his hands full in watching his babies. He goes on the principal that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" and in consequence, he sees that all his wards are well and stay well. All in all it is a strangely interesting and equally happy family that dwells within this enclosure. Man and beast are devotedly attached and these attachments more often than not, result in a genuine and lasting affection between the keepers and their wards.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Gee! Why didn't Grace just wait another day.

THE PURCHASE PRICE;

OR THE CAUSE OF COMPROMISE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1910, by Emerson Hough

"Of course," she added, "I have been in entire ignorance of all matters out here for a year past. I have been busy."

"Why should you follow the political fortunes of an obscure Missourian?" he asked. "On the contrary, there is at least one obscure Missourian who has followed yours."

As usual, she hung on the main point. "But tell me," she demanded of him presently, a little added color coming into her cheeks. "Do you mean to say to me that you really remember what we talked about?"

He nodded, smiling. "Don't you remember, we talked about faith and how to get hold of it? And I said I couldn't find it? Well, I have no apologies and no explanations. All I have to say is that I fought it out, thrashed it all over, and then somehow, I don't know how well, faith came to me—that is all."

"And it cost you everything."

"Just about everything in the world, I reckon, so far as worldly goods go. I suppose you know what you and your little colonization scheme have done to me?"

"To you—what do you mean?"

"Why, didn't you know that? Weren't Carlisle and Kammerer your agents and didn't Lily, our late disappearing slave and also late lecturing fugitive yonder, represent them? Don't you really know about that?"

"No, I had nothing to do with their operations."

"Lily or these men, or people like them, took away every solitary negro from my plantation as well as from two or three others neighboring me. They didn't stop to buy my property. They just took it. You see, madam?" he smiled rather grimly—"these northern abolitionists, remain in the belief that they have all the virtue and all the fair dealing in the world. It has been a little hard on my cotton crop. I will not have any crop this fall. I had no labor. I will not have any crop next summer. With money at 12 per cent and no munificent state salary coming in, that means rather more than I care to talk about."

"And it was I—who did that for you. Believe me, I was wholly innocent of it. I would not have done that to my worst enemy."

"No, I suppose not. But here is where we come again to the real heart of all of these questions which so many of us feel able to solve offhand. What difference should you make between me and another? If it is right for the north to free all these slaves without paying for them why should there be anything in my favor over any one of my neighbors? And, most of all, why should you not be overjoyed at punishing me? Why am I not your worst enemy? I differed from you. I wronged you. I harmed you. I did everything in the world I could to injure you."

"I never meant it! I never intended it! It was done wholly without my knowledge! I am sorry!"

"You need not be sorry. It is only one of the consequences of following one's faith. Anyhow, I'm just a little less inconsistent than Mr. Benton, who had always been opposed to slavery, although he still owns slaves. The same is true of Mr. Clay. They both have been prominent politically. Well, set them free of their slaves and they and I would be about even, wouldn't we? It comes to being pretty much the same, I must confess."

"I can understand that," said she. "For that matter, we are both ruined; and for the same reason."

"What do you mean? And tell me, once more, who are you? You certainly have stirred things up!"

"As to the latter, it makes little difference," said she. "I will confess to being a revolutionist and a visionary reformer; and an absolute failure. I will confess that I have undertaken things which I thought were within my power, but which were entirely beyond me. Well, it has ruined me also in a material way."

"How do you mean?"

"This colonization work was carried on by my own funds. It is not long ago that I got a letter saying that my funds were at an end. I had some small estates in the old country. They are gone—confiscated. My last rents were not collected."

She, in turn, smiled, spreading out her hands. "You see me here in St. Genevieve, perhaps on my way to St. Louis. Tell me, is there demand for persons of foreign experience, who understand a little French, a little English, perhaps a little music?"

It was his turn to show consternation. "Is it indeed true?" he said. "Now it is time for me to say I am sorry. I do not understand all about it. Of course I could see all about that an immense amount of money was being paid into this colonization folly. And it was your money, and you are ruined. It's a shame, a shame! I'm a man. I can stand it. But you—you ought to have ease, luxury, all your life. Now look what you have done!"

There came a sudden knock at the door, and without much pause, Hector entered, somewhat excited.

"Monsieur—madame!" he exclaimed. "One comes."

"Who is it?" demanded Dunwoody, frowning.

"My father! He is come but now from Tallwoods, monsieur."

"What is wrong out there? Tell him to come in."

"I go."

A moment later Dunwoody had left the room to meet old Eleazar, who made such response as he could to the hurried queries. "Monsieur," said he, "I have ridden down from the hills. There is trouble. In the neighborhood are some who are angry because their negroes have disappeared. They accuse M. Dunwoody of being the cause and say that he is a traitor, a turncoat. This very night a band are said to plan an attack upon the house of monsieur. I have met above there M. Clayton, M. Bill Jones, M. le Docteur Jamieson and others, who ride to the assistance of M. Dunwoody. It is this very night, and I—there being no other to come—have come to advise. Believing that monsieur might desire to carry with him certain friends, I have brought the large carriage. It is here!"

"Thank God!" said Dunwoody. "They don't vote with me, but they ride with me still—they're my neighbors, my friends, even yet!"

"Hector," he exclaimed suddenly, "come here! Then, as they both listened, he went on: "Tell the people there cannot be a meeting after all. I am going back to my house, to see what is on up yonder. Hector, can you get a fresh horse? And are there any friends who would go with you?"

The sturdy young cooper did not lack in courage, and his response was instant. "Assuredly I have a horse, monsieur," was his reply. "Assuredly we have friends. Six, ten, seven, eight persons shall go with us within the hour. But I must tell!"

Jeannie was at his elbow, catching scent of something of this, guessing at possible danger. She broke out now into loud expostulations at this rashness of her spouse, parent of this progeny of theirs, thus undertaking to expose himself to midnight dangers. Hector, none the less, shook his head.

Much of this conversation, loud and excited as it was, could not fail to reach the ears of Josephine, who presently had joined them and who now heard the story of the old man, so fully confirming all Dunwoody said.

"There is trouble! There is trouble!" she said, with her usual prompt decision. "There is room for me in the coach. I am going along."

"You—what in the world do you mean? You'll do nothing of the sort," rejoined Dunwoody. "It's going to be no place for women up there. It's a fight this time."

"Perhaps not for Jeannie or Hector's mother or for many women, but for me it is the very place where I belong. I made that trouble yonder. It was I, not you, who caused that disaffection among the blacks. Your neighbors ought to blame me, not you. I will explain it all to them in a moment, in an instant. Surely they will listen to me. Yes, I am going."

Dunwoody looked at her in grave contemplation for an instant.

"My dear girl, how can you find it in your heart to see that place again? But do you find it? Will you go? If you insist we'll take care of you."

"Of course! Of course!" she replied and even then was busy hunting for her wraps. "Get ready. Let us start."

CHAPTER XX.

The Specter in the House.

THE travel stained figures of Dr. Jamieson, Judge Clayton and the Hon. William Jones met the Dunwoody coach just as it was leaving at the upper end of St. Genevieve's main street.

They had found fresh horses and to the belief of Dunwoody it was quite as well that they rode horseback, in common with the followers of Hector, who presently came trooping after him. The interior of the coach seemed to him more fittingly reserved for this lady and himself. None the less, the Hon. William had uttered none of his native curiosity. It was his head which presently intruded at the coach window.

"Ah, ha!" exclaimed he. "What? Again? This time there is no concealment, Dunwoody! Come, confess."

"I will confess now as much as I ever had to confess," retorted Dunwoody angrily. "If you do not know yet of this lady, I will introduce you once more. She is the Countess St. Auban, formerly of Europe, and now of any place that suits her. It is no business of yours, or of mine why she was once there, or cares to go there again, but she is going along with us out to Tallwoods."

Judge Clayton made salutation more in keeping with good courtesy than had his inquisitive friend. "I have been following the fortunes of this lady somewhat attentively of late," he said at length. "At least she has not been idle!"

"Precisely!" ventured Josephine, leaning out of the window. "That is why I am coming tonight. I understand there has been trouble down here—that it came out of the work of our colonization society?"

"Rather!" said Clayton grimly. "I was back of that. But, believe me, as I told M. Dunwoody, I was not in the least responsible for the running off of negroes in this neighborhood. I thought, if I should go out there and tell these other gentlemen, that they would understand."

"That's mighty nice of you," ventured the Hon. William Jones. "But if we don't get there before midnight they'll be so full of whisky and devilment that I don't think they'll listen even to you, madam."

"It is pretty bad, I'm afraid," said Judge Clayton. "What with one thing and another, this country of ours has been in a literal state of anarchy for the last year or two. What the end is going to be I'm sure I don't see."

"And the immediate cause of all this sort of thing, my dear madam," he continued as he rode alongside, "why, it seems to be just that girl Lily, that we had all the trouble about last year. By the way, what's become of that girl? Too bad! She was more than half white."

"Yes, it is all about that girl Lily," said Josephine slowly, restraining in her own soul the impulse to cry out the truth to him, to tell him why this girl was almost white, why she had features like his own. "That is the trouble, I am afraid—that girl Lily and her problem. If we could understand all of that, perhaps we could see the reason for this anarchy."

The group broke apart, as the exigencies of the road traveled required. Silent now in part as to matters present, wholly silent as to matters past, Josephine and Dunwoody went on into the night, neither losing the tight rein on self. Swaying and jolting its way upward and outward into the wider country, the coach at last had so far plunged into the night that they were almost within touch of the valley in which lay the Dunwoody lands. Eleazar, the trapper, rode on the box with the negro driver, who had been impressed into service. It was the old trapper, who at length called for a halt.

NATURE'S WARNING

Janesville People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney ills come mysteriously. But nature generally warns you. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy—If there are settlements and sediment, Passage frequent, scanty, painful. It's time to fear serious kidney trouble.

It's time to use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have done great work in Janesville.

Benjamin Shallcross, 269 S. River St., Janesville, Wis., says: "Two years ago I had a great deal of trouble from inactive kidneys. The secretions from my kidneys contained sediment and were otherwise disordered. My back became so lame that it was difficult for me to stoop or lift and I became ill run down. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time, these symptoms of kidney complaint left me and I enjoyed much better health. I could not be induced to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills were I not certain of their merits."

DINNER STORIES

In a great deal of trepidation a difficult young man called at the office of the father of the girl he was smitten with and stammered: "Sir, I—pardon me, but I want to marry your daughter."

"I'm busy," go and see her mother, young man," said the father.

"I have already seen her mother, and I still wish to marry your daughter."

A lawyer in court occupied the whole day with a speech which was anything but interesting to his auditors.

"Some one—who had left the court room and returned again after the interval of some hours, finding the same harangue going on—said to the opposing lawyer:—

"Is not H—taking up a great deal of time?"

"Time?" was the answer. "He has long ago exhausted time and encroached upon eternity."

"Now, between you and me, darling," he began as he sat with his "George," she interrupted. "I wish that you would be a little more precise in your words. How can there be anything between you and me? There isn't room."

And immediately she disproved her own statement by smuggling up still closer.

Mrs. M. left the house for a few moments one morning, telling little Hazel to answer the doorbell if necessary. Presently there was a ring. The lady caller, learning that Mrs. M.

was not at home, opened her card case, and in doing so a bit of tissue paper fluttered to the steps. Picking it up Hazel remarked: "Sir, you dropped one of your cigaret papers."

ELI CRALL, WM. SEMAN, DAN CONWAY.

Town Board of the Town of Center. Referred to Committee No. 6.

Supt. of Schools D. D. Antisdel read his annual report.

Janesville, April 18, 1913. To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Rock County.

Gentlemen: Once more I have the honor of submitting my annual report to you. A very busy year in the school work has passed since my last report to you. Since then I have visited all the schools of the county, and a good share of them more than once. An unusually large amount of office work has had to be handled, the reports required by law being especially burdensome.

My visits help me to share in the improvement and new equipment found each year. A very large number of the districts have been in places which have not yet waked up to the needs and the rights of the children, and the opportunities which are being wasted for children and parents.

At roll call all members present except Sups. Bear and Rossow.

Within a little more than a year three good, modern school houses have been built; two to replace those destroyed by a tornado, one at River, side because the old one was condemned by a state inspector. These buildings will not only be a help and inspiration to their districts, but also to other places.

Our teachers' training school is doing excellent work. Fourteen were graduated last June, and all are teaching in the county. As a rule they are doing good work, and striving to put into practice the instruction given them by the school. The same instructors have been engaged for the next year. They have been visiting the graduates, and by letters and friendly advice they are constantly helping the girls who are teaching.

Twenty graduates are expected this year. Each one of them is spending some days in some country school, teaching part of the second day. For educational committee, for the 1912-13 school year, we have been running diploma examinations.

These accounts have been checked up by the educational committee, and found correct.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

O. D. ANTISDEL, County Superintendent.

Sup. McGee moved to adopt report of Supt. Antisdel.

Adopted.

Resolved: That the county clerk draw an order in favor of the educational committee, for the sum of one hundred dollars, for the purpose of paying the expense of conducting the diploma examinations for 1913.

This order to be drawn on the general fund, and charged back to the school if they want to attend one.

To help out the teachers who have some experience I have planned an institute of three weeks, in which more advanced work will be given, similar to one of two weeks conducted last year, in which I had about as large an attendance as the summer school had.

Over one hundred students of the rural schools graduated last year, and graduation exercises were held for them in June. Most of the graduates attended with many of their friends.

A spelling contest and other interesting numbers filled the afternoon, making the rural school work seem more important to all of them. More students ought to stay in the grades long enough to graduate, and so complete this work which is the foundation of all their knowledge. No place is so good for a child to grow up in as in the country. If country people will do what they should to make the homes and the schools what they should be. These two should work hand in hand, the home and the school.

The annual school board convention last July was well attended, and many said it was the most helpful they have had in the county, because so interesting and practical. The members voted to have the next convention in July, so I expect to call that meeting early in that month.

Accurate records have been kept of the attendance at the schools, and in most places the average is slowly becoming better and more regular. I have called on many parents and written to many others to save reporting them to the sheriff. A few cases have had to be reported to him, when conditions of attendance were too bad.

Much of your money spent for schools has been wasted because scholars have been there a business run at half its capacity, a losing business. We need fewer schools, and then run them to full capacity.

Books for the school libraries have again been ordered, early this year, and some are already in the schools. The older people ought to make more use of these libraries. There are many very helpful books in them.

Miss Edna Hemmings, who has served so well as deputy superintendent, has resigned to take effect April 30. After carefully considering the qualifications of several applicants for the position I have decided upon the one who seems best prepared to fill the place, Miss Sadie Clapp of Janesville. She has taught successfully for several years, holds a first grade certificate, and has considerable knowledge of stenography and typewriting. The appointment is subject to your approval.

My visits to the schools disclose some teachers who are not succeeding, but it is remarkable that so few are real failures, when we consider their youth and inexperience, and the many very difficult conditions they have to meet. They very much need the friendly advice and co-operation of the people in their districts. Instead of the indifference or opposition so often met with. Can we not make like term of office to which I have just been elected noted for its co-operation?

I want your co-operation. Let us teachers want it. Let us make co-operation and progress the motto of the coming months.

There is a great field before us. I am emphasizing things as farm work in many ways. There is a great field in arithmetic, civics, agriculture, etc., which I would like to publish and put in the hands of the scholars and people. I would like to furnish to the school boards blanks for the pension fund, and other reports. But the $200 fund for postage, stationery and printing is not nearly enough for such a county as this. I am already paying, from my own pocket, considerable besides the $200 furnished to me. So I suggest that the educational committee be authorized to talk this matter over with me, and see if we can not do more for the schools along this important line of work.

My financial report is given at the close of this part of the report.

I am sure educational outlook is brightened by the fact that so much thought and attention is being given to the county schools. The present legislature will pass some laws intended to help these schools, which are the foundation of our whole educational system. They have suffered long and greatly from indifference and neglect. Shall we not help to change these conditions in Rock county? Shall we not give to everyone of our boys and girls an education nearer to that which is their birthright? And one that will better prepare them for future citizenship, with sound minds in healthy bodies, well trained and ready for noble living.

A SMALL BUNGALOW—No. 214. SIZE 26x26 FT.

In this plan provision is made for a bedroom upon the first floor and the dining room has the virtue of being separated from the kitchen by a small pantry, a feature always striven for in the larger houses. The stairs go up directly from the living room to a hall, at the end of which is placed the bathroom and a bedroom on each side. This plan is well suited to a small family or would make a very desirable type of summer cottage. A door could be placed between the kitchen and living room and the living room used as a combined living and dining room, which would permit using the dining room as a bedroom.

As shown in the photograph this house cost $1600, with basement under entire house, good plumbing and a hot air heating plant. In localities where the cost of material and labor are high it might cost $1800 with complete equipment. It could be built as a summer cottage for about $800.
